FISCALLY SOUND

Since 1974, Moody's Investor Services and Standard & Poors, the nation's largest bond rating agencies, assigned their highest ratings, Aaa and AAA, to the Town of West Hartford's general obligation bonds.

The triple A rating is the highest rating given by the agencies and is based on the town's strength of management and conservative financial practices.

West Hartford is one of only a few towns in the United States to hold the coveted Aaa/AAA ratings from both agencies. Even fewer have maintained such ratings since 1974.
